Undergraduate: Rewriting content for existing courses

- Winter 2016: YSDN1002 Design & Image
Course content has been revised to incorporate semiotics theory and production of meanings.
- Winter 2015: YSDN4004 Corporate Identity Design
Course content was rewritten to included branding and social media strategies and more accurately reflect the realities of contemporary practice.
- Fall 2014: YSDN2004 Communication Design 1
The course content was revised to make use of Moodle to deliver lectures, thereby ensuring consistency between sections taught by the Course Director (myself) and the part time faculty. Assignments were revised to include web technologies in addition to conventional print design.

Undergraduate: New courses implemented, Winter 2004

- YSDN 1010 Introduction to Design (for non-majors/fully online course, with Wojtek Janczak);
An example of my interest in adopting new technologies to classroom learning, this course is designed to be fully online.
- YSDN 3009 Time-based Communication (with Wojtek Janczak);
The Department of Design's first course to explore motion design as a form of visual communication design.
- YSDN 3104 Design for Public Awareness
Students are provided with an opportunity to explore design themes from a social and activist perspective, as opposed to a client/service convention.

Graduate: Master of Design program revision and development, Fall 2015
